

Lesson Plans

Week of: October 19-23, 2020

Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday
IRA: If You Traveled the Underground Railroad by Ellen Levine	IRA: Journey to Freedom by Courtni C Wright	IRA: So Far From the Sea by Eve Bunting	IRA: Three Years and Eight Months by Icy Smith	IRA: NO SCHOOL
Reader's Workshop Readers infer the importance of the setting to the plot of the story in historical fiction so they begin to think about the ways that writers create a sense of authenticity. Reader's Response: Complete the section on your Google Slides assignment for Monday - Comparing & Contrasting Characters Intro GUIDED READING Comparing and Contrasting Settings and Events of Fiction Stories	Reader's Workshop Readers understand that historical fiction writers often use language of the times in the dialogue so that they can connect the reader to the time and place that the story occurred. Reader's Response: Complete the section on your Google Slides assignment for Tuesday - Comparing & Contrasting Characters King Alfred story GUIDED READING Comparing and Contrasting Settings and Events of Fiction Stories	Reader's Workshop Readers understand that historical fiction is always imagined but may be based on real people, places, and events so that they don't confuse it with nonfiction texts. Reader's Response: Complete the section on your Google Slides assignment for Wednesday - Comparing & Contrasting Characters Cornelia story GUIDED READING Comparing and Contrasting Settings and Events of Fiction Stories	Reader's Workshop Readers create a working definition of historical fiction so that they can distinguish it from realistic fiction and nonfiction texts. Reader's Response: Complete the section on your Google Slides assignment for Thursday - Comparing & Contrasting Characters from Amelia story GUIDED READING Comparing and Contrasting Settings and Events of Fiction Stories	Reader's Workshop: NO SCHOOL Reader's Response: NO SCHOOL